

Five climatic-niche metrics show the same effect direction

OR < 1 indicates that broader occupied climatic breadth is associated with lower odds of geographic differentiation rather than within-population variation.